The Key Process

- The expectations of society set out by the national and local government
- Full freedom for the professions in delegation to the most local practical level
- Strong quality assurance of outcomes, not processes and wherever possible not proxy indicators / outputs
A Shared Commitment

“The support and protection of children cannot be achieved by a single agency... Every services has to play its part. All staff must have placed upon them the clear expectation that their primary responsibility is to the child and his or her family.”

Herbert Laming

Aim

Fundamental change to the structure, delivery and outcomes of service to and for children.
Importance of loving Families who set clear boundaries

Children
- Who achieve their potential
- Who become full members of society
- Who become effective citizens of a modern democracy
- Who acquire the skills for economic independence
- Who embrace change throughout their lives
Articulating a value base for organisational change serves a number of purposes:

- Creating a workforce with the right skill set, for the task of working with the most difficult to reach families in a complex society
- Knowing what skill sets to prioritise when resources are limited
- Drawing staff together from disparate roles and isolated working conditions into a common shared understanding
- A basis on which to build policy and procedure
- A way of matching applicants to the organisation. They can be selected and can self select according to the value base
- Providing a practical way to become a ‘safer employer

Always Children First
The need for:

- Family Support – a loving nurturing home environment for each child
- Community support – a positive childhood encouraging participation and promoting sport, culture and arts entitlements
- School / Education Support – raising achievements for all, ensuring individual children reach their potential arranging additional support for those who require it
- Health Support – ensuring children develop string decision making capacity
Delivery

- The commitment to putting the well being and interests of children first
- Children who are heard in all decisions that affect them and be given the opportunity collectively to influence policy in the change programme and beyond
- Transparent accountability and clearly articulated levels of responsibility, and
- Increase community engagement and a commitment to deliver inclusive, accessible services
