Foreword

As Minister of State with responsibility for implementing the Roadmap for Social Inclusion, it was with great pleasure that I opened the 2021 Social Inclusion Forum on 12 April. Given the public health restrictions in place at that time due to COVID-19, it was not possible to hold an in-person event. Notwithstanding these restrictions I am very pleased that the Forum proceeded online, in a virtual format for the first time. This event provided the opportunity for people experiencing poverty, the groups that represent them, officials from Government Departments and those with an interest in social policy, to come together. It provided an opportunity for attendees to discuss the Roadmap for Social Inclusion and to pose questions to officials from a range of Government Departments. Attendees were still able to gather to discuss areas of key concerns in the workshop groups that took place over the course of the week.

This was the first time that the Forum was held following the publication of the Roadmap for Social Inclusion 2020-2025: Ambition, Goals, Commitments in January 2020. It was not possible to hold the event in 2020 due to the COVID-19 pandemic and related restrictions. However, that allowed us to re-imagine the event in an online format, allowing people from across the country to attend. The appetite and enthusiasm for the Forum was evident throughout the week with 245 people... attending the Opening Plenary session, over 100 attendees at each of the four workshops and 153 attending the Closing Plenary session.

In developing the programme for the Forum, I was keen to ensure it focused on the implementation of the Roadmap for Social Inclusion, as it is the overarching national policy for poverty reduction and social inclusion. In order to be effective, policy documents must be discussed, debated and implemented with input from those who are most impacted or are the focus of the policy in question. Feedback on the effectiveness and appropriateness of a policy is vital for successful implementation. For those of you who attended the Forum, I can assure you that your views matter and will be taken on board, not just by my own Departments but across Government.

This report will be sent to the members of the Social Inclusion Roadmap Steering Group, which is responsible for monitoring the implementation of the Roadmap. As Chair of this Group, I will be asking the Steering Group members to ensure that the report is brought to the attention of relevant areas within their Departments. And over the coming months, I will request updates from Departments on the issues raised to make sure that they remain on the agenda.

I look forward to the 2022 Forum. This will hopefully be an in-person event and one that will deliver another successful and thought-provoking set of discussions.

1. Introduction

The theme of the 2021 Forum was “Implementing the Roadmap for Social Inclusion: reducing poverty and improving social inclusion”. This is the first Forum to be held since:

- The arrival of COVID-19 Ireland in March 2020 leading to public health restrictions impacting on economic and social activities with significant pressures across the health system.

Reflecting the strong working relationship between the Department of Social Protection and the Department of Rural and Community Development, the event was organised in collaboration by both Departments. In addition, the European Anti-Poverty Network Ireland and Community Work Ireland, worked with the Departments throughout the planning of the event.

Social Inclusion Forum 2021

The annual Social Inclusion Forum is a national event, at which people affected by poverty and social exclusion, as well as the community organisations representing them, come together with officials from relevant Government Departments, the Minister for Social Protection and the Minister of State with responsibility for Social Inclusion.

The Social Inclusion Forum 2021 took place online, for the first time due to COVID-19 restrictions, from 12th to 16th April 2021, with over 350 people from Government Departments, communities and various organisations from around the country attending the 2021 Forum over the week.
The Forum consisted of four workshops held across the week bookended by the Opening and Closing Plenary sessions. The Opening Plenary included a presentation on the development of the Roadmap, feedback from the regional workshops, and a moderated Q&A session.

The workshops provided an opportunity for participants to discuss some of the themes from the Roadmap for Social Inclusion: Core Essentials – Healthcare, Housing, Energy and Food; Supporting Families and Children; Expanding the Opportunity of Employment; as well as Making Sure Voices are Heard. Finally, the Closing Plenary included a summary of the key points raised at the workshops alongside an address to attendees by the Minister for Social Protection, Heather Humphreys T.D.

The full Forum Agenda, including the list of speakers, can be found in the Appendix to this report.

2. The Opening Plenary Session
The Forum’s Opening Plenary was held on Monday 12th April from 10am to 12 noon. 245 people from 23 counties attended the opening plenary from a variety of sectors including Government Departments, the voluntary sector, Public Sector organisations, representative organisations and academia.

Teresa Leonard, Deputy Secretary General of the Department of Social Protection, welcomed participants and asked the first of a number of interactive questions: “what does social inclusion mean to you?” The ‘word cloud’ graphic below shows the range of responses with ‘Equality’ as the clear frontrunner. Teresa outlined the programme for the week and acted as the event facilitator the opening session.

“What does social inclusion mean to you?”

Opening Address: Minister Joe O’Brien, T.D.

Joe O’Brien T.D., Minister of State with responsibility for Social Inclusion at the Department of Social Protection, and Community Development and Charities at the Department of Rural and Community Development gave the opening address. He spoke about his background working in the Community and Voluntary sector and his attendance previously at the Forum in this capacity. He re-iterated his commitment to listen to the views expressed during this year’s Forum in his new role as Minister of State with responsibility for Social Inclusion. He underlined how his role in the Department of Rural and Community Development links closely with the Community and Voluntary sector through the important work supported under the Social Inclusion and Community Action Programme (SICAP).

In his address Minister O’Brien referenced the degree of change the country has undergone since the Roadmap was published which further highlighted the importance of Roadmap commitments. The Minister underlined the Roadmap’s metrics and targets for measuring progress on commitments, but the most important target is to achieve a consistent poverty rate of 2 per cent, or less by 2025.

Minister O’Brien outlined Budget 2021 measures which target lower income families including:
- a €10 increase per week in the Working Family Payment income threshold for families with 1-3 children;
- the removal of the €425 earnings threshold for the One Parent Family Payment;
- an increase in the rates of Increase for a Qualified Child (IQC);
- a €20 increase per week in the earnings disregard for Disability Allowance;
- increases to the weekly living alone allowance and to the weekly fuel allowance;

He also pointed to the importance of the Pandemic Unemployment Payment and Wage Subsidy Schemes rates in protecting incomes for those whose employment is impacted by COVID-19 restrictions.

Minister O’Brien closed by thanking all those involved in the Forum for their work in preparing for and running it, as well as all participants for attending.

The second interactive question put to attendees was “What is your awareness of the Roadmap for Social Inclusion?” As the graphic below shows, there was a strong awareness of the strategy amongst the attendees.
Progress under the Roadmap for Social Inclusion, 2020-2025

Dr. Dermot Coates, Chief Economist, Department of Social Protection delivered a presentation on the Roadmap for Social Inclusion, outlining the ambition of the Roadmap to:

“Reduce consistent poverty to 2% or less and to make Ireland one of the most socially inclusive countries in the EU.”

He gave an overview of the development of Roadmap, which included engagement with stakeholders at the Social Inclusion Fora, Community and Voluntary Pillar meetings and the Pre-Budget Fora over a two-year period. An update on progress to date was provided, with 14 of the 66 Commitments either completed, or completed with ongoing delivery, and 48 of the remainder in progress at the end of 2020. Due to COVID-19, some Commitments have revised timeframes for completion, and two communications campaigns on return to work supports were deferred to refocus on campaigns in relation to COVID-19 supports.
Examples of delivery under the Roadmap for Social Inclusion

Delivery to date

There have been several notable areas of delivery, including:

- An additional three weeks of Parent’s Leave and Parent’s Benefit are available to each parent of a child born or adopted on or after 01 November 2019 (bringing the total to five weeks).

- Extensions to Hot School Meals programme for 2021. 189 schools, including 171 DEIS schools were recently chosen for this programme in 2021. Hot School Meals funding also continued during the recent Easter holidays.

He explained Roadmap governance arrangements, which include the Steering Group which includes representatives from all Government Department and the Community and Voluntary Sector, as well as well as monitoring at Cabinet, Senior Official and Departmental level, and by the Joint Oireachtas Committee on Social Protection, Community and Rural Development and the Islands. The Roadmap is also subject to a mid-term review which will take place in 2022.

Feedback from Pre-Forum Workshops

In advance of the Forum, a series of four workshops, each based on one of the Forum workshop topics, were held online led by Community Work Ireland (CWI) and the European Anti-Poverty Network (EAPN). These workshops, which were attended by over 200 people from around the country, were held between 15th and 23rd March 2021. These important pre-Forum sessions ensure that the voices of people experiencing poverty and social exclusion, and the groups that represent them, are heard at the Forum.

Ann Irwin, CWI and Paul Ginnell, EAPN Ireland delivered feedback from these sessions, along with representatives of local community groups who deal first-hand with issues at the core of the Forum.

Ann opened the presentation stating that poverty and social inclusion issues were not unknown, however, the issues that certain people and communities face have been exacerbated rather than created by the pandemic. The data shows that there is a “consistency of inequality” as the same groups are shown to experience poverty consistently. However, poverty is experienced differently by different groups, so different strategies must target each group.

Poverty data provided following the Pre-Forum workshops

![Poverty levels chart]

Paul provided further feedback from the workshops and the issues highlighted. These were that a lack of access to core essentials (food, energy, health, technology and housing) was shown to have an impact on those experiencing poverty, exacerbating difficulties. An example provided by Dave Byrne of Cope Galway demonstrated how housing poverty is linked to other types of poverty and can be experienced by a cross-section of society, with some people entering habitual incidences of homelessness.

On the issue of children and families, Paul highlighted the need to retain a child poverty target, preferably at 0%. The long-term impact of COVID-19 on children was raised, alongside issues regarding access to childcare, education and mental health services. Ursula McKenna from the National Collective of Community Based Women’s Networks, Monaghan highlighted the importance of engagement with those experiencing social exclusion, particularly women, to help families access services they need to move from poverty and social exclusion. The importance of access to decent jobs was raised, and the need to ensure that the long-term unemployed should not be forgotten due to COVID-19. Addressing barriers to employment was also highlighted.

The right of marginalised people to participate in decision-making around polices that affect them in order to prevent failure and disconnection was raised. Garda Gary Cogan from the Kildare Social Inclusion Committee outlined the role of Community Policing in engaging marginalised communities who often find it difficult to have their voices heard and to prevent the criminalisation of poverty. Ann closed by stating there is now an opportunity to build a better, fairer, more equal and sustainable society.

Working at the Community Level

The next speaker was Paul Geraghty from the Department of Rural and Community Development, who provided a perspective on work at community level and its impact on poverty and social inclusion. He outlined work carried out by community groups and volunteers during the COVID-19 pandemic under the Social Inclusion and Community Activation Programme (SICAP). This included flexibility to allow SICAP workers to be redeployed into the community effort to provide practical supports (shopping, medicine and school lunches), as well as supporting people who were the hardest to reach in a difficult time. Since January 2018 over 70,000 individuals have received supports under the programme.

Paul also spoke about Commitments under the Roadmap for Social Inclusion, including: the launch of the Volunteering Strategy in December 2020, the rural development strategy; Our Rural Future: 2021-2025, which was launched in the week preceding the Forum; and the work to encourage cross-Government engagement with the Community and Voluntary sector. He finished by speaking about the Department’s role in the National Literacy Strategy, in particular the Digital Divide which was brought to the fore by COVID-19, endorsing a Community Development approach to delivering literacy services.

Moderated Q&A Session

Throughout the morning participants were given the opportunity to pose questions, via the chat function on the online platform. A range of these questions were put to a panel of officials from various Government Departments for response during a Questions and Answers session. Questions covered a broad range of issues including income adequacy, food poverty, childcare, marginalised groups and employment supports.

The full list of questions asked at the Opening Plenary can be found in the separate annex to this report, with answers provided by the relevant Government Departments.

Closing Comments

Geraldine Hurley from the Department of Social Protection presented an overview of the four workshops which would take place over the week. She noted that each of the workshops would focus on a different theme relating to the Roadmap, with an opportunity for participants to discuss related issues.
Kevin McCarthy, Secretary General of Department of Rural and Community Development, provided the closing comments for the plenary session welcoming the strong working relation between the two Departments, reflected in the organisation of the Forum and Minister O’Brien’s brief across the two Departments. He referred to the commitment of the Department of Rural and Community Development to implementing the Roadmap and to the Sustainable, Inclusive and Empowered Communities strategy which places personal and community well-being at its centre.

It looks to empower and support communities through policy, to develop their own vision of a better and more inclusive community.

Kevin stated that social inclusion is at the core of all the Department of Rural and Community Development’s policy initiatives, for example the Volunteering Strategy which needs to ensure that the diverse communities that make up Ireland are represented in volunteering and the Rural Development Strategy which aims to allow everyone to avail of the social, cultural and economic opportunities that exist. He closed by thanking all the morning’s speakers, panellists, Forum partners, staff and participants, expressing his hope that the remainder of the Forum it would be a fruitful and engaging experience.

3. Forum Workshop Discussions

The four workshop topics were based on aspects of the Roadmap for Social Inclusion 2020-2025 and provided attendees with the opportunity to discuss the topics in more detail. They were selected following discussions with the Department for Rural and Community Development, the European Anti-Poverty Network and Community Work Ireland.

Each 90-minute workshop had the same structure with a brief introduction by the workshop facilitator and a short scene-setting presentation provided by a representative from the Community and Voluntary sector. Attendees then broke into smaller discussion groups for up to 30 minutes and were asked to identify three key issues to be brought back to the main group for discussion. The workshop attendees then had to agree five main points to be reported back to the Closing Plenary.

Workshop 1: Core Essentials – Healthcare, Housing, Energy and Food
(Chapter 8)
12 April 2021: 2:30pm – 4:00pm

Roadmap Goal: to ensure that all people can live with confidence that they have access to good quality healthcare, housing, energy and food

Facilitated by Tricia Keilthy, Society of St Vincent de Paul
Presentation by Amanda Slattery and Eileen O’Keefe, Ballyhoura CLG
Workshop attendees: 102 people

Workshop 1 looked at Chapter 8 of the Roadmap, Core Essentials: Healthcare, Housing, Energy and Food, focusing on three types of core essentials:

- Energy: home energy costs; energy efficiency in the home;
- Food: cost, quality, availability, access, skills, knowledge, facilities;
- Health inclusion: access, availability, quality, timeliness, cost.

While Ireland is relatively well positioned to offer reliable access and secure availability of the core essentials of our daily lives, some people in Irish society can struggle to access the basic essentials. For people on low incomes, access to basic essential services on a free or subsidised basis can reduce the expenses to be covered from within that low income. This means they can make that money go further.

Amanda Slattery and Eileen O’Keefe delivered a presentation to workshop attendees on Ballyhoura CLG’s support to families in the east Limerick and north Cork region during COVID-19 restrictions. They deliver over 30 programmes, focussing on three key aims of community, economic and environmental development, providing core essential supports through Child and Family support projects.
Workshop attendees broke into 13 discussion groups to debate aspects of the workshop theme. Discussions were robust and covered a wide range of issues related to the topic. These included: the provision of services alongside a Universal Basic Income; education on basic skills; the impact of the housing crisis on health, education and food poverty; the increased cost of basic essentials (food and energy) due to the COVID-19 restrictions; difficulties experienced in accessing information about available services; and the quality and quantity of housing stock available.

The key themes which were reported back to the closing plenary were:

- Ensuring income adequacy and a minimum standard of living to prevent poverty, including energy and food poverty.
- Access to affordable services (health, education, housing, transport) and adequate information about these supports should be available to those who most need them.
- Preventing food poverty and the normalisation of food banks is important. The extension of the Hot School Meals programme outside of the school term to prevent “holiday hunger” would assist this.
• Pre-existing vulnerabilities have been exacerbated by COVID-19, including a “digital divide” for IT access and literacy, and increased household bills during restrictions.
• The need to ensure affordable housing and recognising housing as a social determinant of health and wellbeing.
• A Just Transition is needed to ensure vulnerable groups and low-income families are not excluded or driven into energy/fuel poverty.

Workshop 2: Supporting Families and Children (Chapter 5)

13 April 2021 10:00am – 11:30am

Roadmap Goal: To reduce child poverty in Ireland and to ensure that all families have the opportunity to fully participate in society.

Facilitated by Saoirse Brady, Children's Right Alliance
Presentation by Clare Deane, Barnardo's
Workshop attendees: 96 participants

The child-specific poverty target is to lift over 70,000 children out of consistent poverty, a reduction of at least two-third on the 2011 level. This target needs to be strategically approached from many dimensions, starting with the family unit and how to improve the situation for children taking family circumstances into account. The Roadmap has a 'whole of government' approach which recognises the shared responsibility across Government to achieve improved outcomes, including proposals to further assist families with children.

Clare Deane of Barnardos opened the workshop with a presentation outlining issues that surround child poverty, looking at impacts that can affect both children and parents. Examples of how Barnardos tackle child poverty are: Barnardos Better Finglas ABC which assists new parents, provides parenting programmes, literacy supports, early years development supports, interagency work and social and emotional wellbeing supports; and the Barnardos response to supporting families during COVID-19 which targeted basic needs and building coping strategies.
Impacts of poverty on children as seen by Barnardos

Impacts we see in Children

- Hungry/ malnourished
- Neglected and Abused
- Developmental delay
- Impacts on Emotional, Physical and Psychological Wellbeing
- Poor School attendance/ negative learning outcomes
- Poor social skills
- Struggle to form healthy relationships in later life

Participants broke out into 10 break-out groups to discuss the workshop theme. Discussions covered a wide range of issues related to this topic. These included: access to childcare for all children; the cost of and barriers to education; supports for new families; identifying groups of society where children have an increased risk of poverty; and the need to take account of the whole household circumstances when addressing child poverty.

The key themes that emerged from the discussions were:

- There should be a new national target of 0% of children in consistent poverty. The definition of child poverty should be broadened to include more holistic indicators, with specific targets for vulnerable and marginalised groups not currently captured in data.
- Increased participation and engagement of children and young people is needed in policy making structures, through outreach to engage with marginalised children and those experiencing poverty.
- Income adequacy should be ensured, with increased targeted social welfare supports to prevent families entering poverty. Increased service provision through early learning and care, education and housing, with access to more universal supports particularly for those experiencing in-work poverty is needed.
• Parental health and wellbeing are key determinants of a child’s wellbeing. More universal supports for families are needed, along with an acknowledgement of the “working poor”.
• The new child poverty target needs whole-of-government support and adequate poverty-proofing measures. A new Child Poverty Unit is required to oversee this and the implementation of the EU Child Guarantee.

Workshop 3: Expanding the Opportunity of Employment (Chapter 2)
13 April 2021 2:30pm – 4:00pm
Roadmap Goal: Give everyone who can work the opportunity of employment as a means to improve their well-being.

Facilitated by Bríd O’Brien, Irish National Organisation of the Unemployed
Presentation by Joe Saunders, Irish Local Development Network
Workshop attendees: 112 participants

While the COVID-19 pandemic radically affected the labour market with the closure of entire sections of the economy, the Government is committed to creating an environment for healthy job growth. It is accepted that employment provides the best means of reducing poverty, but we cannot rely in a passive manner on the market to create quality and sustainable jobs, as envisaged under the UN 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. While the Action Plan for Jobs, Future Jobs Ireland and Enterprise 2025 set out to create sustainable work, the employment services strategy, Pathways to Work, sought to ensure that as many of these jobs as possible could be taken up by people who were excluded from employment.

Joe Saunders from the Irish Local Development Network opened the workshop with a presentation on expanding employment opportunities for all. This was followed by workshop participants breaking into 8 discussion groups. Discussions covered a wide range of issues including the inclusion of employers in the development of strategies and how financial supports relating to returning to work need to be promoted. Barriers to work including childcare and transport, as well as the considering alternatives to full-time work were also discussed. Specific supports for certain groups in society were considered, along with soft skills training for those entering the workforce.

The key themes that emerged from these discussions were:

- The rollout of the Local Employment Service (LES) is welcome, but it must ensure that schemes are client-focused and meet individual needs. A holistic approach similar to the Social Inclusion and Community Activation Programme (SICAP) was recommended.
- Specific employment and childcare supports are needed for vulnerable groups who face additional barriers to employment, including discrimination.
- Early career-guidance interventions and tailored employment guidance is important. Pathways, such as the SICAP My Journey Distance Travelled Tool, give a sense of ownership and utilise a person’s capabilities and strengths.
- Barriers to education and employment in rural areas need to be addressed. These include lack of transport links, broadband connectivity and matching people’s skills with the jobs available in their area (whether urban or rural). Social enterprise can play an important role in this area.
- Greater engagement and communication with local stakeholders is needed to ensure supports are targeted at the right people at the right time. There can be a lack of cohesion, which can impact negatively on participation and lead to exclusion.
Workshop 4: Making Sure Voices are Heard
14 April 2021 10:00am – 11:30am
Social Inclusion is achieved when people have access to sufficient income, resources and services to enable them to play an active part in their communities and participate in activities that are considered the norm for people in society generally.

Facilitated by Paul Ginnell, European Anti-Poverty Network
Presentation by Ann Irwin, Community Work Ireland
Workshop attendees: 101 participants

There are groups in society who face additional, and sometimes unspoken, barriers in accessing and taking up employment opportunities. Cultural and social norms, inherited biases and legacy service deficiencies work against people from identifiable minority groups being accepted as equal participants in the labour market. This can, understandably, impact negatively on motivation and behaviour at an individual level.

Ann Irwin from Community Work Ireland opened the workshop with a presentation on the challenges in ensuring that all voices are heard. She highlighted that a one size fits all approach does not work, and that this must be incorporated into strategies.
Participants broke into 10 groups to discuss the topic. Following frank and in-depth discussions, they reported back the main points from their groups. It was felt that Public Participation Networks need to be consistent in their engagement with groups across all regions. While strategies and polices were welcomed, participants believed they need to be implemented with meaningful targets and proper engagement with relevant groups. There were discussions around diversity education in schools and for those providing services to remove stigma and bias. Barriers to engagement at regional and community level were also discussed.

The key themes reported back to the closing plenary from this workshop were:

- Everyone has a right to participation in policymaking, but it must be meaningful and avoid “box-ticking”. A co-creation approach is necessary in policy making at all levels based on set standards.
- More should be done to include diverse and marginalised voices. The Public Sector Equality Duty should be implemented, and socio-economic status should be included as a 10th ground in equality legislation.
• Public Participation Networks are vital but are often too large to meaningfully address the challenges in social inclusion and represent marginalised groups.

• Effective Community Development takes time and needs expertise and resources. It needs more qualified community workers, as well as programmes and services designed to suit a community’s needs. There is a need to rebuild a programme for autonomous Community Development. The role of Community Development in challenging policy needs to be respected.

• Participation strategies need to be supported and implemented locally to ensure the participation of marginalised voices, with guidelines for front-line staff to promote engagement/participation and training on equality/diversity. Improving digital/literacy skills to enable tech solutions for engagement should be focused on.

• Visible results are needed to reflect the contribution and effort of communities, community workers and organisations. This would encourage further participation and representation and help overcome disillusionment. “Nothing about us, without us!” Agreed strategies must be implemented.

4. Closing Plenary Session

The final session of the Social Inclusion Forum 2021 took place on Friday, 16th April from 10.30am to 11.30am. It was attended by 153 participants, many of whom had attended sessions throughout the week. A poll of the attendees at the closing plenary found an almost even split between those that had attended the Forum in previous years (49%) and those who were attending for the first time (51%).

The session was opened by Kevin McCarthy, Secretary General of the Department of Rural and Community Development. He reflected that the events of the past year had shown the value of community and the importance of working together centrally and locally. He noted that social inclusion is threaded through the work and policies of the Department of Rural and Community Development, most recently evident in the new rural development policy ‘Our Rural Future’, published in March 2021. He stressed the importance of dialogue and consultation with local development and community development groups and the Community and Voluntary sector through events such as the Forum and the planned rural ideas fora and rural youth assembly. He thanked the attendees for their contributions throughout the week, noting that his Department would be keen to learn from the contributions made at the workshops and from the Forum as a whole.

Minister Heather Humphreys, speaking at the 2021 Social Inclusion Forum

Heather Humphreys T.D., Minister for Social Protection welcomed everyone to the closing session of the Forum. She observed that this online Forum was a very engaged event with large numbers attending all sessions and active participation and discussion throughout the week. This level of interest and engagement provide clear evidence that reducing poverty and improving social inclusion remains a priority.

Minister Humphreys stated that, while the Roadmap for Social Inclusion, 2020-2025 was published at the start of 2020 following a period of strong economic growth, there was still considerable work to be done at the time in tackling poverty and social exclusion. When COVID-19 arrived, the Government introduced the Pandemic Unemployment Payment (PUP) to address the immediate impact on household incomes of workers who had temporarily lost their jobs. PUP has supported over 850,000 people at a cost of €6.5 billion to the end of March 2021.

Minister Humphreys indicated that more than €5 billion has also been provided in the form of wage subsidies, alongside a range of other Government measures to support individuals and businesses impacted by the pandemic.

Minister Humphreys said it will take time to gather and process final data on the medium to long term health, economic, social and poverty impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic. But data and research published since the beginning of the pandemic indicate that the social protection system is important in supporting those on low incomes and has softened the impact of pandemic related unemployment and temporary layoffs.

Under Budget 2021 specific measures to support individuals and families on low incomes were introduced by Government. Many deliver on commitments in the Roadmap, such as:

- An increase to the Working Family Payment income threshold for families of up to three children, benefitting some 48,700 families in 2021 at a cost of €21.4m.
- The removal of the earnings threshold for the One Parent Family Payment;
- An increase in the rates of Qualified Child Payment, benefitting some 419,000 children at a cost of €59.2m in 2021;
- An increase in the Disability Allowance earnings disregard to €140 per week;
- An increase to the weekly living alone allowance benefitting some 227,100 people in 2021 at a cost of €57.5m.
- An increase to the weekly rate for Fuel Allowance, benefitting some 375,600 people at a cost of €36.8m in 2021.

Minister Humphreys highlighted other initiatives where progress has been made in delivering on commitments in the Roadmap including:
• An additional €5.5 million for the extension of the Hot School Meals Programme to include primary school pupils who had been availing of cold lunches, extending the scheme to a record 35,000 students.

• An additional three weeks of Parent’s Leave and Parent’s Benefit now available to each parent of a child born or adopted on or after 1st November 2019.

As restrictions are lifted and more people are vaccinated, Minister Humphreys said that we can look forward to more people returning to employment. She mentioned the July Jobs Stimulus measures which would assist this, including an expanded Public Employment Service, a new Work Placement Experience Programme, 35,000 further Education and Training and Higher Education places, an increase in places on the CE and Tús schemes and expanded access to and funding for JobsPlus, Back to Education Allowance and Back to Work Enterprise Allowance. These will benefit the long-term unemployed as well as those impacted by COVID-19 public health restrictions.

Referring to the first question posed to attendees at the opening plenary (What does social inclusion mean to you?) Minister Humphreys agreed that social inclusion equates to “Equality”. She committed to working with colleagues across Government to deliver on commitments in the Roadmap for Social Inclusion. She also highlighted the importance placed on delivery, referring to the Roadmap Steering Group chaired by Minister Joe O’Brien and comprised of senior officials and three members of the Community and Voluntary sector, which monitors progress and reports to a Cabinet Committee.

She closed by thanking both her Departments, Social Protection and Rural and Community Development, for their continued work, and the attendees for their time and participation over the week.

Teresa Leonard, Deputy Secretary General in the Department of Social Protection chaired the session, facilitating feedback from the workshops which took place over the week. Facilitators from each workshop presented the key points agreed at each workshop. A common theme across the workshops was access to services, alongside income supports, as an important factor in moving and keeping people out of poverty.

The final poll of the forum asked attendees “What aspect of poverty or social inclusion has the highest priority for your or your organisation in the coming years?” A wide range of responses were given to this question, with Community Development and Income Adequacy coming out as the most popular responses.

John McKeon, Secretary General of the Department of Social Protection addressed attendees and emphasised the value of fora such as this for informing Government Departments in relation to policy and budgetary decision-making. He noted that policy should be evidence based and that the Department used a range of quantitative data sources, Central Statistics Office, the OECD and others, to inform evidence but that it was important that this evidence was complemented by real world insights as each person’s experience of social exclusion or poverty differs meaning that policy responses need, to the extent possible, to reflect these differences. This is why there is “no one size fits all” solution to the issue of poverty.
This factor also needs to be taken into account in interpreting data. John noted that while we should acknowledge and indeed be proud of progress at a macro level – for example Ireland is one of the only countries in the developed world where income inequality is falling, and we have reduced consistent poverty from just under 10% to just over 5% in 6 years – we shouldn't be complacent. For the people who are still in the 5% group, the experience of poverty and exclusion is 100%. In addition, as we get closer to our goals the challenge becomes more complex, broad brush policy interventions may be less effective and what may be needed are tailored solutions if we are to achieve the Roadmap target to:

\textit{Reduce consistent poverty to 2\% or less and to make Ireland one of the most socially inclusive countries in the EU.}

The Roadmap is supported by the Programme for Government and John stated that it will take a whole of Government approach to implement the 66 commitments. He gave examples of commitments that are already completed including: the publication of the new Further Education and Training Strategy; the full roll-out of the National Childcare Scheme; and the publication of the National Volunteering Strategy. He also pointed out that rather than focusing on social exclusion, something to be avoided, it focused on social inclusion, something to be achieved. Towards this end, rather than focus in on a narrow range of high level poverty measures, the Roadmap now has 22 measures of performance to more fully capture the lived experience, covering housing, education, health and social participation as well as the traditional income and possession based metrics. He reiterated Minister Humphreys point that the last year has been a difficult year and thanked the Department’s staff for their hard work and commitment in responding to the pandemic. He closed by thanking everyone for their continued attendance and engagement at the event and confirmed that the conference report would be submitted to the Roadmap Steering Group for consideration.
Minister Joe O'Brien then closed the Forum, highlighting the discussions he had heard at the workshops throughout the week and in the overview presented at this session. These included the issues of income adequacy and a minimum standard of living, access to affordable services, and food poverty. He acknowledged the complex nature of addressing poverty and social inclusion, as well as the importance of inter-Departmental collaboration.

Examples of the work taking place highlighted by Minister O’Brien included the work of the Low Pay Commission on moving towards a living wage and the establishment of a Working Group on Food Poverty to explore the drivers of food poverty and identify mitigating actions. As society begins to re-open, he re-iterated the importance of supporting people back to work by overcoming barriers to employment. He also acknowledged the recurring theme of participation and ongoing engagement, from involving children and young people in policy-making to improving representation on the Public Participation Networks and engaging with local stakeholders, as well as continued engagement with community organisations. He concluded by affirming that there would be continued engagement around the Roadmap, including the publication of this report.
