

Water Technology Research Group

Trinity College, University of Dublin, Dublin 2 Ireland

A SYNOPTIC OVERVIEW OF THE AVOCA-AVONMORE CATCHMENT AND THE MINES

M. Sullivan, N.F. Gray and C. O'Neill

Water Technology Research
Technical Report: 26
Tigronegy Press

Acknowledgements:

This work was funded by EU Contract: EV5V-CT93-0248 Bio-rehabilitation of the acid mine drainage phenomenon by accelerated bioleaching of mine waste

© Water Technology Research

The information in this document may be freely disseminated on all media on condition that copyright of the material is acknowledged and the source is fully referenced and that a link to the publication is given.

First published July, 1995 (ISBN 1-872220-27-4)

This e-version is published by Tigroney Press on behalf of the Water Technology Research Group, Trinity College, University of Dublin.

Contact: tigroneypress@gmail.com

May, 2017

ISBN 978-1-912290-00-0

CONTENTS

Introduction	4
The Avoca river and its tributaries	6
Topography and glaciation	7
Geology	8
Avoca ores and mineralization	11
Avoca mine	17
History of Avoca mine	18
Mining techniques used at Avoca	21
Sources of environmental problems from the mines	25
Catchment characterization	27
Soil classification	27
Buffering capacity	30
Agriculture	32
Forestry	33
Industry	36
Horticulture	38
Aquaculture	38
Food processing	39
Climate	39
References	41

